New York City Special Inspection Agency Accreditation Training Program

Wednesday, July 8, 2015, 8:30 am - 5:00 pm
Thursday, July 9, 2015, 8:30 am - 4:00 pm

This training is presented by IAS, a subsidiary of the International Code Council (ICC). IAS is an approved accreditation provider by the NYC Department of Buildings.

Course Overview: This is an updated two-day IAS training program provides an overview of the IAS Accreditation Criteria for Special Inspection Agencies AC291, ISO/IEC Standard 17020 and 2014 New York City DOB requirements and rules that govern the accreditation of Special Inspection Agencies (SIA). The program offers participants insight into effectively implementing a quality management system that meets the IAS special inspection requirements and guidance on how to comply with the requirements of New York City DOB. The course will review the steps necessary in the preparation of documents to satisfy AC291. The training session will draw upon IAS staff assessment experiences and insights from field visits and quality system reviews. The program includes discussions and exercises and requires an understanding of basic quality concepts. This training program will benefit both the technical and management personnel directly involved in special inspection administration. Quality managers, technical supervisors, inspection personnel and code enforcement personnel involved in implementing special inspection agency requirements under the NYC Building Code will find this program beneficial.

This training session is approved by the Practicing Institute of Engineering for 13.5 PDHs for Professional Engineers and Registered Architects (including 1 PDH for Ethics) for NYS Continuing Education requirements.
