An Auditor/Lead Auditor Program

Monday-Wednesday, May 11-13, 2015, 8:30 am - 5:00 pm and Thursday, May 14, 2015, 8:30 am - 4:00 pm

This training is presented by IAS, a subsidiary of the International Code Council (ICC).

Course Overview: This training course has been prepared for Certification Bodies, Auditors/Lead Auditors, Internal Auditors/Lead Auditors, Consultants, Quality/Risk Managers, Supervisors and Administrative staff involved with the design, implementation or auditing of quality management systems to the new ISO FDIS 9001:2015 requirements. It will also focus on the basic principles and guidelines of risk management.

During the course, students will receive training on how to design, develop, and audit a Quality Management System (QMS) against the new ISO 9001:2015 requirements. This IAS-designed course focuses on the ISO 9001:2015 risk-based approach and how to manage risk using ISO 31000 principles and guidelines. There will be detailed presentations on accreditation and certification processes, QMS definitions, examples of nonconformity findings and practical exercises on the design and implementation of first-, second- and third-party audits. The course instructor uses practical exercises and workshops to simulate actual auditing of an imaginary company.

On completion of the course students will have been trained to:

• Interpret and describe the certification and accreditation frameworks of management systems;
• Acquire the knowledge and confidence on how to develop a QMS based on the requirements of ISO 9001:2015;
• Achieve an in-depth understanding of new ISO 9001:2015 requirements and the differences introduced from the 2008 version of the standard;
• Recognize the benefits ISO 9001:2015 and how it integrates with other management system standards (i.e. ISO 14001, ISO 22000, ISO 50000, OHSAS 18001, SA 8000);
• Implement ISO 9001:2015 risk assessment requirements using popular risk analysis methods based on ISO 31000;
• Implement an effective quality management system utilizing ISO 9001:2015;
• Audit quality management systems using ISO 19011 and International Personnel Certification Association (IPC) requirements.

Notes:
1. The course is based on the recently developed FDIS of ISO 9001:2015.
2. The course tutor is a member of ISO TC176/SC2 which is developing the new 9001:2015.
3. Participants successfully completing the 4-day training and the examination will qualify for future IAS assessor status.
4. Successful completion of the course satisfies the knowledge requirements for registration to QMS Auditor/Lead Auditor and/or as QMS Manager status.
